He stressed that this is "positive discrimination" concerning the ratio of Hungarians in the Carpathian Basin. Mr. Grezsa also said that this year 303 children more were enrolled in Hungarian nursery schools in Slovakia, adding that this is a positive feedback about the program. As part of the three phases of the program, altogether 175 nursery schools will be renovated and 5 new nursery schools will be built in Slovakia.

Speaking at the event, the president of the Association of Hungarian Teachers in Slovakia (SZMPSZ) Irén Fekete thanked the Hungarian Government for organizing the competition for the seventh time, stressing that it is a modern and useful game which mobilizes children. She added that the game is very useful because it encourages families and teachers to work together with children. Speaking at the event, the head of the department responsible for Hungarian communities in Slovakia at the State Secretariat for Hungarian Communities Abroad Éva Czimbalmos Molnár said that it is a great pleasure that the game launched in 2013 is still popular today across the Carpathian Basin. She added that the aim of the initiative is to strengthen Hungarian communities through children.

Ukrainian Language Act: Good relations are still not up to the Hungarian government

“It is still not up to the Hungarian government whether we return to good Hungarian-Ukrainian relations”, Minister of Foreign Affairs and Trade Péter Szijjártó wrote on his Facebook page with relation to the Ukrainian Language Act issue. The Minister was reacting to the fact that, following their meeting in Kiev on Friday, Ukrainian Education Minister Hanna Novosad said she doesn’t regard any of the proposals that Mr. Szijjártó put forward at the meeting as feasible. Mr. Szijjártó wrote on social media that on Friday the Ukrainian Minister for Education had promised before several witnesses, including the Ukrainian Foreign Minister, to soon meet with representatives of the Association of Hungarian Teachers in Transcarpathia (KMKSZ) and discuss the proposals with them. “I hope she keeps her word. A return to good relations is still not up to us”, he emphasized in the post. During his visit to Kiev, Mr. Szijjártó informed his Ukrainian negotiating partner with relation to the Hungarian proposals concerning the possibility of the simultaneous teaching of the Ukrainian language for minorities and enabling Transcarpathian Hungarians to preserve their native language.
